My little beloved Hilda,

[...] We have had the opportunity of seeing many great things that only this country can offer, but little is seen that can be useful. [...] the telephone area is not what we at home so eagerly expect, but mostly rather poorly, probably due to the fact that the patent conditions have made all competition impossible.

Everything with the name Bell branches off the same tree and therefore all with common interests and purpose to control the telephone systems worldwide. Should something new appear, they are as one at holding it secret so that it will not belong to some other group [...]
